PRESS RELEASE

"A full view of one of the world's most coveted beaches is, in itself, an element capable of inspiring any interior design project. As expected, my design seeks a continuous dialogue with this unique landscape. Adding warmth and an unparalleled sense of lightness, the tone of the wood became a key reference in the composition of virtually all interiors and common areas.

For the social areas, I opted for a multifunctional approach, perfectly aligned with the Carioca way of life, which embraces interaction and celebration. Hence, the integrated kitchen and living area, and a glass-door wine cellar that keeps favorite wines always within reach. In the private areas, calm and tranquility were essential elements, both for moments of rest and for working from home — a growing necessity that motivated the inclusion of a home office in every bedroom.

In summary, maintaining a neutral and luminous atmosphere, with highlighted textures — from wood to upholstery fabrics — to enhance the sense of spaciousness, was a key principle in all areas, both private and shared. Strategic points for contemplation of the breathtaking beauty before the eyes were also created. There is so much poetry in this magical place. My project simply aimed to create the conditions for it to be lived intensely."
